SAYS CANAL DOES NOT CARRY TYPHOID

When the Disease Was Epidemic at Chicago, He Claims, St. Louis Was Remarkably Free From It.

REPUBLIC SPECIAL.

Chicago, Ill., March 5 .- "Typhoid fever epidemics in Chicago have absolutely no effect on the drinking water in St. Louis. Remarkable as it may seem, the charts which I have compiled and which I offer as evidence show that when there is high death rate in Chicago from typhoid fever there is a correspondingly low death rate from the typhold germ in St. Louis"

Such was the testimony of Professor W. P. Mason of the Rensselaer Polytechnic Institute of Troy, N. Y., in the Missouri-Illinois canal suit before Commissioner Bright to-day.

Attorney James Todd, who represents the sanitary district of Chicago in the case, says Professor Mason's testimony is the most important that has been offered for the defense and completely shatters the contention of Missouri.

In the course of his testimony, Professor Mason referred to bacteriological experiments on the water of the Illinois Rive at its mouth. He said the samples of water he examined was free from typholdfever organisms.

In his opinion, the typhoid fever germs, if they did find their way into the drainage canal in sewage in Chicago, died from exposure to natural antagonistic organism existing in the canal water.

The charts Professor Mason submitted brought out the peculiar relative condi-tions of typhoid fever in Chicago and St. Louis, They tended to show that when Chicago was in the grasp of an extraordinary typhoid-fever epidemic St. Louis, at that time and for weeks following, was enjoying almost perfect immunity from the dhease. In months in which typhoid-fever cases in St. Louis increased there was a corre-sponding decrease in the number of cases reported to the Health Department in Chi-health during the day.

Mr. Whitney was 71 years old. That he died instantly after being stricken was evidenced by the peaceful expression on his face. Heart disease probably caused his death. Mr. Whitney leaves a widow and four children. Mr. Whitney was born on a farm near Geneva, N. Y., and after his school years took up telegraphy. During the Civil War he was manager of the Western Union office in Indianapolis, and at the same time he wrote book reviews for the Indianapolis, on the New York Life Insurance Company was reorganized, and John A. McCall was elected president, Mr. Whitpey was made secretary.

WOMAN SHOOTS HER ASSAILANT.

Mrs. Frederick Bauer Saves Herself From Assault by Brave Methods.

REPUBLIC SPECIAL Omaha, Neb., March 5,-A special from Alliance, Neb., says: When she was alone in her house this afternoon, Mrs. Frederick Bauer, wife of a well-known farmer. living eight miles southeast of Allance, was assaulted by J. M. Bertron, her husband's hired man.

The woman struggled desperately with her assailant, and drove him out of the home in Brooklyn. He seemed in perfect house. She then procured a Winchester rifle, and when Bertron re-entered the house, she opened fire on him.

He turned and tried to effect his escape. She pursued him, shooting as they ran. Bertron was seriously wounded, and after walking and crawling two miles he fell fainting by the roadside, where he was picked up later and brought here.

While a physician was dressing his wounds, the husband of the woman he had assulted walked into the office, having beard of the attempted crime, and was with difficulty restrained from killing him, Bertron was hurried to jail and a strong guard has been placed over him. There is talk of lynching, and trouble is expected.

In the belief that the congestion of World's Fair Traffic at the Union Station in St. Louis will be so great that some relief will be necessary, officials of the East St. Louis and Suburban Railway Company have made plans to induce excursionists to use their line in preference to the beit line.

With this end in view a diagram has been prepared, showing how much more convenient they believe passengers will find it to transfer to the street railway line at the Relay Depot than to go through to the Union Station or over the belt line to the World's Fair grounds. The officials hope to secure the concurrent action of the railways that have terminals in East St. Louis in making East St. Louis the terminal instead of St. Louis, Failing in this, they will compete when the option of choosing their destination. The East St. Louis street railway officials will make a special effort to secure the excursion traffic that will come from within a radius of 13 miles, according to a statement made by F. H. Thomas, who has charge of the passenger and excursion department. He says he believes most excursionists will prefer to make East St. Louis their terminal point, to avoid the delay and congestion on this side of the river. The company will advertise the advantages of its route and will put on twenty-five cars, expecting to be able to handle 3,000 passengers an hour.

The cars will prefer to make East St. Louis the terminal instead of St. Louis the terminal instead of St. Louis the definition of the railway that have terminals in East St. Louis in making East St. Louis the terminal instead of St. Louis the definition of the street railway that have better opportunities to get seats, with the added inducements of traveling through the business part of St. Louis Ten cents fare each way will be charged.

FRENCH COMMISSIONER ARRIVES IN NEW YORK.

Up of the Art Exhibition His Country Is Sending to the Fair.

REPUBLIC SPECIAL. New York, March 5.-Except for two days of rough weather, the French steamship La Lorraine, which arrived early today, had a remarkably pleasant trip for this season of the year. M. Andre Saglio, French Art Commis sioner to the St. Louis Exposition who was a passenger, brought with him his staff of twelve persons.

"We have," said M. Saglio, "besides a large number of pleces of statuary, about 600 pictures by leading French artists. Besides, there will be an exhibition of what is known as the Nouveau art things, which is sure to be very attractive. In sculpture the most notable work of our sculpture the most notable work of our exhibit will be a bronze statue by M. Rodin, entitled 'Le Penseur' (The Thinker'), which has attracted much attention on the other side. In our building, which, as is known, is modeled after the Grand Trianon at Versailles, will be two magnificent Gobelin tapestries."

Stanley Beis, Commissioner from Caylon to the St. Louis Exposition, also arrived on the Locania to-day. He will go at once to St. Louis to remain until the close of the Fair.

"Our building," he said, "a model of the temple of the Tooth at Kandy, is almost completed, and I received word on my arrival that the Cingalese exhibit has been shipped to this country, and that a number of native boys, clerks and my two fel-low-Commissioners will soon arrive on this side."

English Commission and shut off their building from any sight of visitors farther away than Skinker road.

The scheme for the erection of the ocean liner fell through, some say from lack of funds, while others insist that it was the determined protest of the British Commissioner's representatives in St. Louis that led to its abandonment.

Then came a concessionaire who wanted to show the bucking broncho and the cattle branding of the orthodox Wild West. The location assigned was the same strip of ground where it had been planned to erect the steamship. This show was to rave been placed in a corral of high board fences, and above the wooden ramparts would have risen the tents for men and animais connected with the circus.

After twisting and turning them every possible way, workmen who tried to get the cases containing furniture from the Prince of Wales's yacht into the Mannfactures building yesterday finally de-cided that either the door was too small or the cases too large,

Forming a Ways and Means Committee of the Whole, the question of taking and putting them together again in-ade was discussed. This would have been the action of the force had not a customs inspector appeared on the scene and asked the trouble. The men told him their di-lemma and the solution at which they had arrived.

lemma and the solution at which they had arrived.

"That would never do," said the inspector. "If you were to open one of those cases the whole United States Government and the British royal family would stop work until you were safely locked up in the Four Courts."

"But what can we do?" asked the spokesman of the workmen.

"The only thing left is to make the door larger, since ye'l can't make the cases smaller," said the customs officer.

After referring the matter to three departments of the World's Fair administration, permission was finally given to partments of the World's Fair administration, permission was finally given to cut out the top of the door, and after the carpenters had finished the cases were sent rolling into the building.

The cases contained all of the splendid pieces made for the Ophir by Waring & Gillow, makers by warrant to H. R. H., and were 12 feet high by 15 feet long and 6 feet thick, forming the largest packages that have as yet been received at the grounds.
